Has the dog ever bitten?

Yes

If yes, please explain in detail the severity of the wound (was the skin broken, did it leave a mark, bruise, etc)

Yes, he has bitten me once. The skin broke and there was bruising. But, to be fair, I shouldn't have put my hand in the middle of a dog fight. Teddy can be territorial around food and he and the rottweiler that he fought with have alpha personalities. They are both the same gender and around the same age and have haven't fought up until the last year. Teddy shows zero aggression towards the two other dogs (yorkies - one male, one female), even when around food.

How does the dog react to strangers?

If a stranger approaches during daylight, he is friendly. If a stranger approaches at night, he will growl until he realizes that there is no threat. He is aggressive when a stranger approaches a car, but I think that may not be an issue if I'm not in the picture. The two of us lived in my car for a period of time, and since then he gets anxious during car rides.

How does the dog react to other dogs?

I've never seen him get aggressive during an initial meeting. He and our rottweiler have been fighting recently, however, there are no issues with the yorkies.

How does the dog react to men?

I haven't notice any difference in interaction between men and women

How does the dog react to women?

I haven't notice any difference in interaction between men and women

How does the dog react to children?

He loves to play and will chase anything that runs. I worry about him being too rough for younger children, however. He may be more suited for a family with older children, if any at all.

How does the dog react to cats?

He will run up to and chase cats, but won't hurt them. He really just seems unsure of how to play with them. He's grown up with my cat his entire life.

How does the dog react to being crated?

Not well at all. He will try everything possible to break out. We're dealing with an injury right now for this reason. I highly recommend against crating for long periods of time.

Describe how the dog rides in a car

He used to love car rides, but now he barks and growls at any strangers that approach.

How does the dog react to being petted?

There are never enough pets for Teddy. He loves them and will push you around with his nose if he wants more.

How does the dog react when you try to take treats or food away?

He has shown some aggression with food and treats.

How does the dog react when you try to take a toy away?

He can be hesitant to give them up, but he's never been aggressive. He loves tug-o-war.

How does the dog react to someone touching his/her feet or legs?

Day to day is not an issue, but he does not like getting his nails trimmed. I've always had to get a vet to do it while he was sedated.

How does the dog react to his/her tail being touched?

No response other than looking at you curiously.

How does the dog do when on a leash?

He LOVES walks, but can get excited and pull you around on a leash.

How does the dog react to thunderstorms and loud noises?

He will try to curl up on my lap, all 60lbs of him. If he can't get to me, he will try to get as far from the noise as possible.

Does the dog show aggression if approached when eating?

Yes, No

Does the dog come when called?

Sometimes

Is the dog destructive in the home?

No

Where is the dog kept most of the time? (describe area in house, outside yard, confined room, crate, tie-out)

The crate most of the time, but occasionally he will be left out in the house. We have to rotate crating either him or the rottweiler.

How would you describe the dog (check all that apply)

Friendly, Hyper, Stubborn, Affectionate, Anxious to please, Trainable

Please describe your dog's good habits

He is house trained and knows basic commands like sit, stay, come, and down. He's never torn anything up while left in the house except trash. He will assist in bed making by ensuring all pillows are properly placed on the floor, but he will not chew them. Cuddling is a passion of his. He gets excited when people sing and loves to dance. He is very delicate when taking treats.

In what areas does the dog need improvement? (describe: barks too much? jumps on people? runs away constantly? afraid of loud noises? does not get along with other dogs?)

He will bark over the fence at barking dogs and any noise he considers to be a threat. He jumps up, but not often (I taught him to jump up and dance, which may not be appreciated by everyone. But, I always thought it was cute). I am worried about being around dogs his size with dominant personalities.

Why do you want to surrender your dog?

I plan on going to school and working full time in the near future, and I simply won't have as much time to spend with him as he deserves. He is already crated far too often as is, and although I love him, I think he will live happier with someone else.

Please provide a description for your dog that will appear on our Courtesy Listings webpage if your dog is eligible. You can view the current Courtesy Listings to get a better idea of what others are writing in the descriptions for their pets.

Teddy is approximately 5 yr old neutered male border collie mix. He is house trained and good with older children. He is good with most other dogs but would need to be introduced properly. He chases cats but does not harm them. Teddy doesn't like thunderstorms or fireworks. He knows basic obedience commands and is a friendly, affectionate dog that likes to curl up in your lap.
